Duesseldorf.—Belgian troops have occupied Krupp Harbor at Hoch Emmerich, on the Rhine near Dusseldorf, for the purpose of controlling exports from this harbor and the collection of the 10 percent tax on goods shipped.

All kinds of smuggling tricks have been resorted to by the Germans in the occupied area. In one instance the French customs authorities at a front post discovered bundles of notes hidden under shipments of vegetables. The money was confiscated.

Various German government officials, according to the French, are being used to further the resistance movement. The French claim the Germans are using the banks and post offices, as well as individuals to bring money into the Ruhr. In Duesseldorf the French seized, at a postoffice, 15,000,000 marks which had been sent there for one of the strike leaders to collect and distribute among the working men under government pay.

Aviation Post Soldiers Nabbed; Charged With Jekyll-Hyde Life

Bloomington, Ill.—Donning civilian attire, two model soldiers of the 3rd Aviation Post, camped at Randolph, used to slip away from camp each Sunday.

And being model soldiers, that wasn't unusual. But their Jekyll-and-Hyde existence has just come to light with their capture following a week-end career of crime.

The two were Harold Picher, 20, of Leola, and Walter M. Strickland, of Sullivan, 19, were scrupulously respectful of government regulations while in camp and their perfect deportment and strict attention to the army code, resulted in their obtaining frequent leaves of absence over Sunday.

It was while on these trips to neighboring cities the alleged crimes occurred, comprising robbery and slugging of taxi cab drivers at Champaign and Bloomington and attacks upon girls at the former place. Other mysterious crimes committed in central Illinois during the first year, may be charged to this pair, authorities say.

A near murder here, climaxed their career. The victim, Charles Benn, taxi cab owner and retired horseman and race track follower, is in a precarious condition at a Bloomington hospital. Owing to his age, the attacks may prove fatal.

According to an alleged signed confession of the youths, they came to Bloomington in quest of funds and selecting McLean as a victim, engaged him to drive them to the suburbs. Reaching a secluded spot they beat him into unconsciousness with the butts of their heavy army revolvers and then robbed him of $149 and his watch.

The youths then fled for camp, according to the confession and were half way home when they were located upon a Lake Erie and West-ern freight train at Sycamore and taken into custody by officers who had been warned by telephone. The blood soaked money alleged to have been taken from McLean was found in their possession.

A motor car assembled when the pair were brought back to Bloomington and the two prisoners narrowly escaped lynching, so intense was the feeling against them.

Each soldier was held for the grand jury in bonds of $7,500 each.

STATE SCORES IN YULE BOMB TRIAL

Whole Drainage Feud to be Aired, Indication at Magnuson Trial.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Wisconsin Rapids.—The most important point contested so far in the trial of John Magnuson charged with mailing the "yule bomb," which killed Mrs. James J. Chapman, wife, 27, last, was won by the state at the opening of Thursday morning's session in circuit court here, when the court overruled the motion of the defense to deny the admissibility of the testimony of John Corbett, owner of the drainage dredge, which was blown up on the morning of July 6, 1922. Likewise, the state was permitted by the court to use the testimony of August Woyach, superintendent of the dredge.

Clear Path Seen
This decision now gives the prosecution what is believed to be a clear path in airing out the alleged drainage feud between the opponents of the drainage project. It is the intention of the state to prove that the explosion of the dredge was a collateral offense which led to the mailing of the "death package" to Chapman.

The jury was excused during the strenuous debate by both sides and was recalled to hear the testimony of the two men, whose testimony assisted the state in its conclusion that Magnuson was connected in the explosion of the dredge.

Mr. Woyach followed Corbett, who told of the dredge's destruction when but a mile from the Chapman farm. Woyach last week was also awakened by a camp cook early on the morning of the seventh and the finding of the demolished machinery, metal slugs and charred paper cans, which he said were found in the piston of the engine, proving that the explosion was committed by some unknown person or persons.

More State Witnesses
Additional witnesses for the state included James Tarr, grandson of the Chapmans, who told of receiving the parcel, and J. A. Niles, Fond du Lac, United States government postoffice inspector, who told of the linking together of evidence which resulted in Magnuson's arrest. According to Niles, filings, T. N. T. and powder wrappings were found in the work shop of the farmer along with a lathe.

Minneapolis, Minn.—Former Governor James M. Cox of Ohio, who, like William Jennings Bryan, is a winter resident of Florida, Wednesday contributed an answer to the statement of Attorney General Daugherty that President Harding would be renominated and re-elected.

"Of course, Mr. Harding will be renominated," said Mr. Cox in a special interview given the writer. "What else could the republicans do if they nominated anyone else it would be equivalent to a repudiation of the Harding administration. As for the re-election campaign, that is quite a different matter. The administration will have to answer to the country for a good many things. It gave a fatherly important promissory note to the people in the 1920 campaign and now the Harding administration must match performance with promise."

"First, what has Mr. Harding done about the association of nations which he preached about in the campaign of 1920? It has been forgotten that Billie Root, Charles Evans Hughes and 29 other prominent republicans endorsed his countrymen (Continued on Page 12)

FEEL SURE RIVER VICTIM IS ARNESON

St. Paul Worker Still Missing—Police Take Charge of Clothes.

Late Thursday afternoon, Chief Newman received a call from Chief Springer of Edgerton stating that Arneson has a sister, Mrs. Thompson, living there.

Belief that the man who leaped from the high railroad bridge to his death in Rock river here early Wednesday was Carl Arneson, missing section man of the St. Paul railroad, was strengthened, Wednesday night, when Arneson failed to visit his room in the Wasa hotel, and did not report for work, Thursday. Chief of Police Charles Newman, certain that the drowned man is Arneson, took charge of his personal effects, Thursday, and endeavored to get into communication with relatives.

So far no effort has been made to recover the body, as the swift current and ice flows above the Fourth avenue dam, the only make dragging dangerous but, practically impossible. The belief is general that the body has not gone over the dam and that it will be found around the Fourth avenue bridge when dragging begins.

Had $1,500 in Bank
Chief Newman could find little information in going through Arneson's belongings, as there were no letters to indicate his relatives may be. His bank book was found.

Bites Through Steel Chains; Bends Heavy Rails Over His Head

London.—That a Jewish athlete named Breitbart, aged 34, six feet, three inches in height and weighing 210 pounds, can bite through steel chains and bend a medical correspondent of the Lancet.

Breitbart's performances astonished a committee of physicians, engineers, smiths and prizefighters of athletic corporations who saw him sever with his teeth several iron and steel chains one after another thick, bend into a circle with his mouth in a full square, using his mouth as a fulcrum; bend over his head a rail four inches thick, by two and a half inches. The correspondent says: "The committee are satisfied that he accomplishes these tasks by means of extraordinary muscle power."

Magnate Dies as Probe Is Started

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Buffalo, N. Y.—Edward R. Steel, founder of the L. R. Steel corporation, which went into receivership March 8, died early Thursday on a train enroute to Chicago. Mrs. Steel was advised of her husband's death in a telephone message from Toledo, where the body was taken from the train.

Steel's sudden death came on the eve of investigations into the stock selling and other financial methods of his promotions by county and state authorities. Carl Sherman, state attorney general, Wednesday notified the receivers that he desired to make a thorough examination of the books of the various Steel corporations and District Attorney Guy L. Moore announced Wednesday night that, on account of reports of gross extravagance in the handling of the $20,000,000, invested by 50,000 stockholders, he would hold an inquiry. Federal agents also are in touch with the receivers but as yet have taken no action. Starting with the more conservative right held separate accounts when the convention met to determine their course of action.

Funds for Defense

Mr. Walsh questioned Morrow about checks, totaling $300, which he transmitted to Charles E. Ruthenberg, one of the defendants, for the defense of communists who had been arrested.

The witness said he collected the money in Philadelphia for the workers' defense fund and that it was to be used in the pending trial of the defendants. He also admitted distributing illegal literature.

St. Joseph, Mich.—The 24 "goose" who voted in the communist convention held in the Michigan sand dunes last August, to continue the communist party as an illegal underground organization, were named Thursday in the trial of William Z. Foster by "K-97," the government secret service agent, who promised to attend the convention as a delegate.

Under cross-examination by Frank P. Walsh, attorney for Foster, "K-97," whose real name is Francis Morrow, described how the radical left wing and the more conservative right held separate accounts when the convention met to determine their course of action.

Madison, Wis.—A four battle between warring factions within the La Follette progressive republican ranks over the tax issue in the legislature was prevented Thursday by re-reference of the C. E. Hansen bill for repeal of the personal property tax to the tax committee. This action had been set on a special order of business at a session of the assembly Thursday night.

Madison.—Warring of the factions within the La Follette progressive republican group of the legislature that has threatened to split the administration forces, Thursday ended in agreement of the leaders to call a truce before the show-down battle scheduled for tonight.

The controversy was ostensibly ended Wednesday night with the intervention of Attorney General Herman J. Eklund, personal representative of Senator Robert M. La Follette. Following a conference of the leaders, Assemblyman J. C. Hansen, Dane county, who precipitated the clash on Monday with his motion to recall the C. E. WHY I LIKE JANESVILLE

Janesville truly lives. It is a satisfaction to be able to say that for any place. While it has nothing to boast of, it is a place that makes all transportation to and from business a serious matter, that is true, but it is not a very interesting kind. The very orderly decency with which one may find it, is a factor in its favor. There is no unusual thing about Janesville.

Medical Science

Progress Related at Men's Banquet

Interesting facts concerning progress in medical science, told in language that the ordinary man might understand were brought out under the leadership of Dr. T. J. Snodgrass at a meeting of the Boys' Brotherhood at the Methodist church Wednesday night. The subject of new theories in regard to the prevention and cure of goiter was handled by Dr. T. W. Nuzum, who said modern researches tended to show that they were caused by lack of iodine in the food, and were curable by supplying this lack at the very beginning of the trouble. Dr. G. K. Woolf discussed the use of new instruments in the diagnosis of diseases of the genital urinary tract and illustrated his points by x-ray pictures taken the last few months. These instruments, he showed, took diagnosis out of the realm of guess work into the practicality of facts.

Dr. Snodgrass told of the cause of diabetes and a new chemical product discovered during the past year which is accomplishing wonderful things in the treatment of this disease. He also outlined the basis of a balanced ration which should be the goal of every housewife in planning her daily menu.

A brief talk by Dr. F. F. Hamer on group medicine, in which he spoke of it as effective teamwork in the curing of disease closed the program.

A preliminary stunt put on by Ervin J. Sartell, who posed as a quack doctor, assisted by E. C. Hoyer as policeman, F. J. Boone, an emergency physician, and Lynn Winley as coroner, caused a great deal of amusement. The Welcome orchestra of eight pieces played during the supper hour, and Robert Lane sang a song.

Elaborate decorations of blue and gold were used in the dining room and upon the tables, and supper was served to about 100 men by Circle No. 1 of the club with Mrs. E. Walters as chairman.

ARRANGE PROGRAM FOR DEDICATION

Speakers Being Secured for High School Jubilee Next Tuesday.

While a definite program for dedication exercises of the new Janesville high school, Tuesday night, has not yet been made up by Jesse Earle, president of the board of education, and Supt. Frank O. Holt, many of the events and talks have been planned and there will be many things to interest the general public. It is expected the auditorium will be filled and a sound reproducing apparatus is being secured for the stage so the exercises can be heard with 1,000 people or more, and be able to hear all the talks. If this apparatus works well, the pupils will be able to hear the exercises as if they were in the auditorium.

Pres. W. A. Gantfield of Carroll college, Watkehsia, is to be the main speaker, while many other talks will be given. Stephen Bolles, editor of the Gazette, will speak. Mr. Thomas E. Welsh will give a talk, and an introduction will be made by Jesse Earle. Mr. Holt, possibly another member of the board of education, and state officials will all be asked for a few words. The flag given to the school by the W. R. C. will be presented by Mrs. J. Van Ryn, architect of the Milwaukee firm of Van Ryn and DeGelleke, the city council school board, and other representatives of the city.

ASSEMBLY AGAIN VOTES CONFIDENCE IN LA FOLLETTE

then congratulated the senator and returned faith in his leadership. Assemblyman E. B. Mather, in a prepared speech in defense of his resolution attacked those who were opposed to the board of education. The assemblyman, a Blaine leader, in connection with his commendation of the senator Wisconsin senator referred to the governor as "a tried and true progressive" who was elected in 1920 "over the bi-partisan combination of anti-LaFollette elements."

Assemblyman A. E. Matheson, Janesville, took the floor against the resolution. He declared that the assembly was favoring the senator against the senator's opponent, LaFollette, was doing exactly what the resolution condemns.

"In the days of peace it is not well to talk of war," Mather said. "This is an attempt to substitute peace hysteria for war hysteria in an attempt upon those who expressed their opinions during the late conflict."

Opposing the resolution, Assemblyman Robert Caldwell, Lodi, told the LaFollette supporters that their support for these moves to whitewash the war record of the senator, was "spoiling the chances of making a president of the United States out of Robert M. LaFollette."

Assemblyman Matheson declared that the late election was a sufficient vindication of the record of LaFollette.

opportunity to go ahead with the drafting of his bill unchanged. It permits the warring groups within the LaFollette forces to withdraw without an open defeat to either of them.

A caucus of 55 assemblymen, aligned with Governor Blaine, including within their number most of the stalwarts, determined Wednesday night to back the governor should the fight between Governor Blaine and Speaker John D. Dahl break tonight when the bill to repeal the personal property offset to the income tax is set for a special order of business. The meeting determined to withdraw his motion to take up consideration of the bill and to ask that it be referred back to the committee.

Scores Win on Floor

The swing to Governor Blaine, that would result in a personal victory for him should the tax bill be taken up Thursday night, opened on the floor of the assembly Wednesday. The governor scored his first win over Speaker Dahl who is leading the insurgents when he sent word from his office that the Dahl bill calling for a one-man civil service commission, should be engrossed by the assembly. The speaker opposed the measure which was introduced by him at the request of the governor, and he asked for its indefinite postponement. His opponents took the "yea" vote, on a 41 to 30 vote, and then sent the proposal to engrossment 82 to 5.

showing he has nearly $1,500 on deposit in a local bank. All clothing is in good condition, and Arneson's friends are able to give no motive for his suicide except that he appeared in poor health the last few weeks, although he continued to work.

He was a Norwegian, having several articles of literature in that language among his possessions, some of which were addressed to him at Edgerton. His World War registration card indicates that he was working on a farm in Dane county at that time. Investigation in Stoughton of Arneson's effects, Chief Newman notified Chief Ben Springer, Edgerton, and Chief R. C. Hansen, Stoughton, asking for details of information as to the dead man's relatives.

"I understand," said Chief Newman, "that Arneson had a sister living in Stoughton. She has left that town and gone to either Minnesota or the Dakotas. He is also believed to have a brother in Colorado."

The chief was expecting further information, Thursday afternoon, from the Edgerton and Stoughton chiefs as to the dead man's relatives.

PACKED HOUSE IS EXPECTED TO SEE "LIGHTNIN'" HERE

MISS DESSIE BACON

Many will find it almost impossible to attend the coming theater attraction "Lightnin'" at the Myers theater Thursday night, March 29, because it is Holy week, and have asked Manager Charles Boutin why he booked the play during Lent, and especially in Holy Week. The answer was an interesting story.

When Frank Bacon was at the height of his fame playing the part of "Lightnin'" Bill Jones in Chicago, Mr. Boutin, a friend of Bacon's for many years, wrote to him asking if it would be possible to get him or some company of "Lightnin'" to play Janesville. Bacon wrote to the producer, John Golden and advised Boutin to do so. As a result of the two letters, this week, March 29, was set as the only available one. There were no objections then, because Janesville was so fortunate then to get this play at all, when it is playing only the largest cities, and during the summer, thoughts of Lent were far from everyone's minds.

From the advance sale of tickets by mail, there will be a crowded house to see the production. Interesting displays have been made with the envelopes of the mail orders, showing many from out of town, even outside the county. Regular box office sale will start Monday morning.

Grape-Nuts THE BODY BUILDER

"There's a Reason"

Made by Postum Cereal Company, Inc., Battle Creek, Mich.

FOOD robbery is often disguised. Vital essentials of diet are left out and the defect hidden by quantity, looks and taste.

Phosphorus is a food element necessary to the body. Nature provides it in her good grains—but extra "refinement" in the milling processes throws it away.

Grape-Nuts supplies phosphorus as a part of the well-rounded, perfected nourishment from wheat and malted barley—together with iron, vitamin, and a bran content so often lacking in modern food.

Grape-Nuts with cream or milk is completely and soundly nourishing; so crisp and delicious that every member of your family will greatly enjoy it for breakfast, lunch or supper.

Ready to serve in a moment. Order from your grocer today.

GAZETTE PLATFORM FOR 1923.

Election of a council of seven to back up the city manager form of government.
Continuous effort to secure for Janesville a modern public utility.
Municipal ownership of the city's water supply.
Establishment of free public playgrounds, tennis courts and other recreational facilities.
Building of a new city hall.
Cleaning up the streets and blind tigers and enforcing the laws.
Establishment of a real estate mortgage company to make the building of homes more easily accomplished.
Additional room in the post office by building an annex.
Arranging a bond building program so that the farmer and taxpayer will be the greatest beneficiaries.
Traffic regulations that will reduce reckless driving and the number of deaths from auto accidents.

Finishing the Job.

By a majority in every ward in the city, save in two, the citizens of Janesville, both men and women, registered a most emphatic desire to have the aldermanic form of government discontinued in the city and a new government installed. That new government is the city managerial system. The result of the election was a great step forward in the municipality in which we live. It was a good advertisement to the hopeful people of other cities. A large majority of the people of Janesville decided that they no longer wanted the kind of government they had in 1922 and still have at this time, and will continue to have until the third Tuesday in April. It may also be recalled that the manager form was fought by organized effort. Nearly every member of the present city government was arrayed against it. It was a right which they had and which is guaranteed to them by all the basic laws of the republic—the right to vote on any question as one pleases—and they exercised it to the fullest capacity, and the limit of their effort, but failed to stop the people in their determination to make the change.

Opposition was defeated. Many of those who opposed city manager government did so on the ground that they were uncertain as to its operation but how that a majority of the citizens have emphatically accepted it, they are pledged for themselves to do all in their power to make it the splendid success of which it is capable. But there are also the irreconcilables—who realize that the manager form is here and while expressing doubts as to its probable success, are ready to use it for all it is worth to carry out personal ambitions and insofar as possible continue the very conditions against which the people of Janesville spoke in no uncertain terms at the polls last April. The result of that election was both positive and negative. It was positively for city management and registered its negative to the city government in power both in theory and in its majority personnel.

The job of making a city manager government was only in part done when the method was adopted last spring. It remains to complete the job. It will not be done by making a city council of the men who were arrayed against it. The personnel of that council which has the big one task of selecting a city manager is of the utmost importance. The citizens who supported manager government last spring and those who place the city's interests above those of any corporation or personal affiliations which from time to time seek special privilege, have a real obligation to see that the job is properly finished at the polls on April 3 of this year.

The assembly has a Dahl, rides hobbies and everyone knows it is possessed of a rattle.

Dropped Into the Sea.

Easter Island, that strange far off south Pacific piece of land with its enormous figures of a semi-civilization ages ago, is reported sunk as a probable result of the last terrific earthquake in that part of the world. There still remains confirmation to be had of the report made by a French merchant captain at Tahiti, as merchant captains have no little reputation for "seeing things." This strange island, bleak, scantily watered, inhabited by 150 Polynesian cattle tenders, is chiefly known because of its archeological wonder in the form of carved megaliths, some 600 in number, telling of another civilization. These stone images and strangely inscribed tablets, are enigmatic and still far from being understood and form an ethnic riddle. Who made these strange monuments and when? If seismic disturbances have buried the island under the South Sea the answer will never be known though it might perhaps have been solved had the island still remained for future archeologists to examine.

Governor Davis of Kansas vetoed every bill passed by the legislature and the legislature promptly passed them all over his veto. It was a remarkable record since no bills had been passed over a governor's veto since 1868.

WANTED: A TEXTBOOK ON DOGS

By FREDERICK J. HASKIN

Washington.—Harry B. Hawes, a representative in congress from Missouri, recently declared that the Department of Agriculture should find time in the midst of all its publication work to produce a bulletin on the dog. Mr. Hawes pointed out that the department has issued a tremendous number of bulletins on a wide range of subjects but has not put into permanent printed form the information which the public would like to have concerning man's best friend, the dog.

The Missouri congressman spoke with some feeling on what he regarded as the department's neglect in this particular, pointing out that it is a great department of the United States government can employ experts to compile and publish information about almost every kind of animal from the wren to the hog, a little effort ought to be expended on a scientific booklet concerning the dog.

The real reason the department has not issued such a bulletin obviously is that the dog has a doubtful commercial value. He is not commercialized to any great extent. He does not represent or constitute an industry as does the hog, the cow or the sheep. Nor has he been the subject of a publication because he is a menace like the rat. It seems peculiarly fitting that it should be a Missouri congressman who should voice this complaint about the remissness of the Department of Agriculture, for Missouri is the state of the union probably most frequently thought of in connection with the dog. It was Senator Vest of that state who delivered the famous address to the jury on the subject of the faithfulness of the dog. Finally, when Champ Clark, former speaker of the house of representatives, became a candidate for the presidential nomination, his campaign symbol was the Missouri hound dog, one of the wildest yet most faithful of the canine breed. This campaign made the Missouri hound famous from coast to coast.

Congressman Hawes has voiced his complaint in an intelligent manner. His criticism has been constructive, for he has told just what such a publication as he believes the government should compile should contain. First, he thinks there should be a reasonably accurate dog census. He makes his own unofficial estimate of the American dog population which, of course, he bases on Missouri. Starting with the premise that St. Louis, Missouri's chief city, issues 25,000 dog licenses a year, he estimates that Missouri has a dog population of 800,000. Reasoning from this figure, he arrives at a total American canine population of 7,000,000 which is about one dog to every 12 or 15 persons—men, women and children—in the nation. This means that every third family has a dog.

Proceeding, he places a valuation of $5 on every dog and shows that the nation has an investment of $35,000,000 in its dog population. Government, says Congressman Hawes, have paid a good deal of attention to the canine species even if the American government has published no handbook concerning them. Every state in the union, he points out, has on its statute books some kind of legislation concerning dogs and every city of 5,000 inhabitants or more has some ordinance.

Mr. Hawes says that, in general the government dog book should follow this outline. First, a description of useful breeds and their standards. Second, a chapter on feeding. Third, a chapter on breeding and one on house training, farm training and special training. A digest of state and municipal law affecting dogs should be included and finally a discussion of bad dogs, outlaws, criminals, sheep-kills.

Congressman Hawes insists that there is as much a practical reason for the government's publishing a book on the dog as on any other domestic animal. There are more breeds of dogs, he says, than of horses, sheep or poultry. The dog is the oldest of domesticated animals, having assisted him to get food and defend him against enemies before the advent of the horse or any other domestic animal companions of man. On the prehistoric tombs of Egyptians and Assyrians are to be found the likenesses of faithful dogs. Both the Old and New Testaments make mention of the dog, yet not the Department of Agriculture.

Next to man, points out Mr. Hawes, the dog ranks highest in intelligence, being subject to all the human passions of love, hatred, fear, hope, joy, distress, courage, timidity and jealousy. Man receives service from many animals but the dog is probably the only one from which he receives pure, voluntary friendship. He is the only animal who consumes the same foods that man eats.

Congressman Hawes thinks the bulletin he advocates should list and explain the uses of the dog and he makes a partial list as a suggestion. The most important use, he thinks, is that of companion, especially as that also includes guardian. Other uses are as watchdog, hunting, herding of sheep, cattle and other creatures, guides for the blind, work such as churning butter on a treadmill and similar duties, stage performing, fire fighting, police work, rescue work and war. Mr. Hawes has innumerable instances of dogs following all these vocations with success and profit to their masters.

The proposed government bulletin should contain a lot of wholesome advice for owners of dogs to the end that both master and dog will get along more happily. Some of the principal points which Mr. Hawes thinks should be included are: In buying a puppy get one over three months old but not more than eighteen months old, unless you have previously been acquainted and friendly with him. Always register your dog's pedigree.

Feed a puppy frequently but an old dog only twice a day. Feed from a pan; never from the ground or floor. Feed your dog yourself as this will prove an additional element of control over him. Feed a mature dog morning and evening, the heavier meal in the evening but dog should not be worked immediately after a meal. Do not feed dogs chicken bones; they injure the animals' intestines.

Keep a dog's kennel clean and dry. Use a leather collar, never a metal one and chain a dog only when necessary.

Some of the bad tricks can be cured readily if you know how. For instance, one of the bad habits of most dogs is to find and break the shells, suck out the contents. Open an egg, put a lot of red pepper in it and put it where the dog will find it. He will never suck another egg. When dogs are vicious, it nearly always is the fault of the master. Treated with intelligence, bad habits will not be formed.

One of the specially interesting bits of advice given is never lend your dog and never borrow one. Such promises, says Mr. Hawes, are almost certain to spell the dog's life. He has a vast deal of further advice and information concerning dogs which seems to indicate that if his suggestion is acted upon, the Department of Agriculture could do no better than commission Congressman Hawes to prepare the dog book which he thinks is so badly needed.

contest and he finished a bad second in the primary. Bentley represented all that one remembers of the old school of politics. Few if any improvements, a city as wide open as it was possible to make it and an atrophied public spirit.

Nature destroys as well as makes beautiful. The court house yard is evidence of tragedy now where a few days ago all was beauty. Yet every one of the trees broken down can be saved by modern methods of tree surgery.

No sooner do we get one fat man out of the limelight than another steps into the scenery. Dabst follows Roscoe.

Nature will celebrate St. Patrick's day in a week or so by "Wearing of the Green."

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST.

THE GOOD WIFE
When skies are cloudy and hope sinks low,
The smile of a true wife's good to know.
When the road seems long and the goal not clear,
The voice of a true wife's sweet to hear.
When your best seems lost to the headless throng,
The faith of a true wife keeps you strong.

Well-armed he, for his days of strife,
Who comes at night to a smiling wife,
And brave he'll be in the bitter choice,
Who is counseled well by a gentle voice,
And much he'll dare, and much he'll do,
Who owns the faith of a woman true.

For this is the charm of a woman fair—
She can smile at failure and smile at care,
She can soothe the blows of the world and speak
New strength into him who is faint and weak,
And he'll brave the world with his head up high,
The faith of a woman to justify.

We are two, we are two, though we seem as one,
The smile of a true wife lights us on,
The voice of a true wife's sweet to hear,
Holds us fast through our doubts and fears,
And for all we dream as life speeds along,
The faith of a true wife keeps us strong.

SPEAKING OF INHUMANITY

Here is a portion of a letter "which I think illustrates many human weaknesses:

"My wife found out, about three months ago, that a lump which had been growing in her left breast for some time was a cancer. Dr. advised her to be operated on right away, but after thinking it over she decided against the operation. She didn't believe she could stand the pain of the anesthetic. In the meantime she heard of a man in that could draw out a cancer with plasters. She consulted him; he commenced his treatment, nine weeks ago. The first plaster was just come off and apparently has done nothing but causes intense pain. The man says it is because she used her arm and that he must put another plaster on which will bring it out if she will keep her arm quiet for 10 days and stay in bed. There is also a tumor or lump as large as a hickory nut on the other breast, which he says will be cured by the plaster on the left breast drawing the poison from her system. I know the answer but I feel that you will give an unbiased opinion."

What horribly crude and inhuman treatment this poor woman has suffered in her ignorance! How infinitely greater the other breast, which he says will be cured by the plaster on the left breast drawing the poison from her system. I know the answer but I feel that you will give an unbiased opinion."

Q. Where did the nickname "Brother Jonathan" as applied to Americans originate?

A. A British humorist, about tradition asserts that the national nickname "Brother Jonathan" is derived from the fact that General Washington used this sobriquet in speaking of Governor Jonathan Trumbull of that state, who was one of his most trusted advisers.

Q. Did the United States send Great Britain $4,000,000,000 in gold during the war?

A. The loans which the United States made to the allies were not made in gold. The United States established credits against which the belligerent nations might draw. The terms of the loan stated that they were to be repaid in gold.

Q. Who owns the Panama railroad?

A. The Panama railroad and the steamships run in connection with it are owned and operated by the United States.

Build With Brick

Figuring initial cost and expense of maintenance over a number of years, a brick building will cost less than one of less permanent construction.

Brick walls are a protection against heat and cold. The use of brick as a building material will result in a saving of fuel in cold weather, while insuring delightful coolness during the hot summer months.

Brick has high fire resistive qualities, and on account of this fact, brick dwellings get the benefit of lower insurance rates.

This bureau will aid you in the selection of such plans. It has for free distribution a booklet, giving cost of various sizes of buildings of 60 brick homes. Just clip the attached coupon, enclose two cents and return to the publisher, and the booklet will be sent to you by return mail.
